A. Creating an Account

An account on this repository is no longer needed. All publication information is available without needing an account. If you are a CSHL researcher, your can manage your publication at: https://elements.cshl.edu

All information within the IR is available without need for creating a user account. User accounts are generally reserved for people involved in adding and maintaining records within the repository. Scientific administrators, or persons typically assigned to maintain a laboratory's publications/data typically have an account and training. If you need records added or updated, contacting Sasha Luks-Morgan is typically the easiest and faster way to get materials in the repository.

Welcome to the CSHL IR!

Back to Table of Contents